MAKING ALL THE PIECES FIT

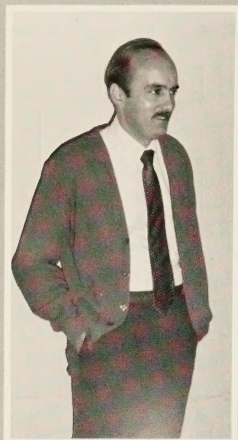

WITH CHANCELLOR STYLE

Before September 6, 1988 . . .

As the building of the school was underway, bulldozers and handmade signs became a familiar sight. Faithful construction workers labored on weekends and after-hours in order to open the school's doors on time. Mr. Winston, the driving force behind the school, worked twelve to fourteen hours a day, seven days a week to assure its success.

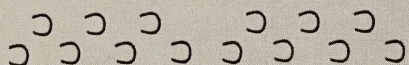

Mr. Marra seems pleased.

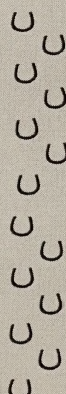

This sign says it all.

Obviously, these ladies are thrilled at the first of about 170 lunches this year.

"Charging Ahead" was the daily motto during those first few weeks at Chancellor High. Beginning with the first teacher workday, when Mrs. Holmes and several S.C.A. helpers, including Stephanie Hubble, served breakfast to our new faculty, we were showing how to take our first steps in style. And this Charger style continued through many new challenges.

Like Mike Brown and other football players, we all ate, studied, and walked in the shadows of bulldozers in the fall of 1988. But we are the only students who can say we actually watched the childhood of Chancellor High. From the first posters made by Mike Servant, Carrie Miller, Ayanna Bryant, and Gary Wallace, to the first letter jacket hanging in Mr. Winston's office, to the first (and only!) dedication ceremony where Dr. Meyer, Mr. Winston, and Dr. McDaniel chat with the Navy's representative from the U.S.S. Chancellorsville, all of these "firsts" will stay with us forever.

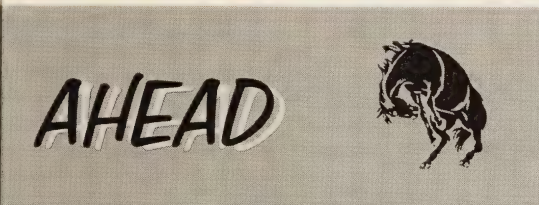

DAILY CHA AT CHANCE

CHARGE

CHALLENGES WILLOR HIGH

Charged Up . . .

Chris Hermann and friends prepare for an exciting day at C.H.S.

Tyrone Byrd, Jeff Hopkins and Kevin Lawler pause in the hall.

Michelle Montgomery, Gerri Greener, Tiffany Reed, and Stephanie Webb-Meeks celebrate during lunch.

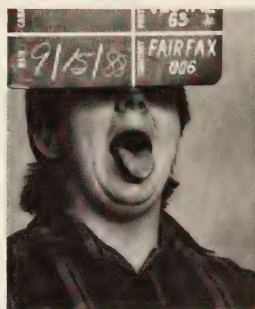

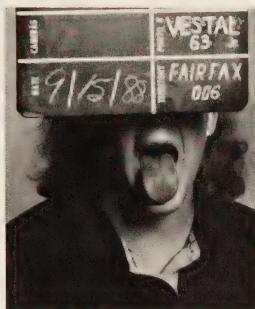

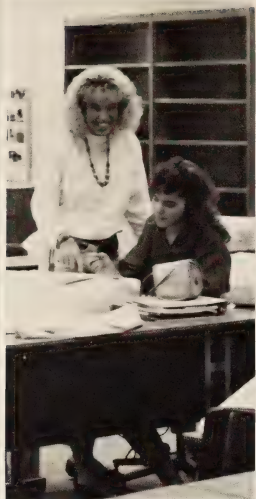

Cindy Rivera stands alone.

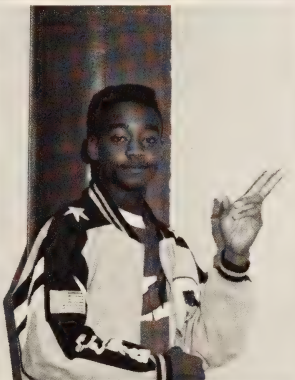

Percussion students gather in the band room.

Junior Jill Chapman kneels to hang a spirit poster from the balcony.

Far left: Sherri Wilson and Stephanie Bartlett CHARGED UP ...

And Ready To Go!

Taking A Chance

On Chancellor

Under the spotlight, the seniors finally shine.

An elite group of seniors decided to take a chance on the area's newest high school and showed up at Chancellor with high hopes for a new beginning. They were not disappointed when they arrived that first day, September 6, 1988. Spacious classrooms and stunning architectural design met them at our cherry-red triple front doors. Chancellor's main lobby's spiral staircase impressed not only our first open house visitors from the community, but also our first Charger seniors.

WHAT WOULD

Mr. Winston: "Try to find all the good people you can to help you. You need a lot of help; it can't be done without help. You try to make sure that you have everybody organized to get jobs done. And you enlist the support and the help of students and parents."

Tara Downs: "You get as much done as possible."

Scott Harris: "You quit running it and throw the ball."

Jeremy Pendergraft: "Open it up and unlock the doors."

Jason Quattlebaum and Jason Hart: "Ask for money."

YOU DO?

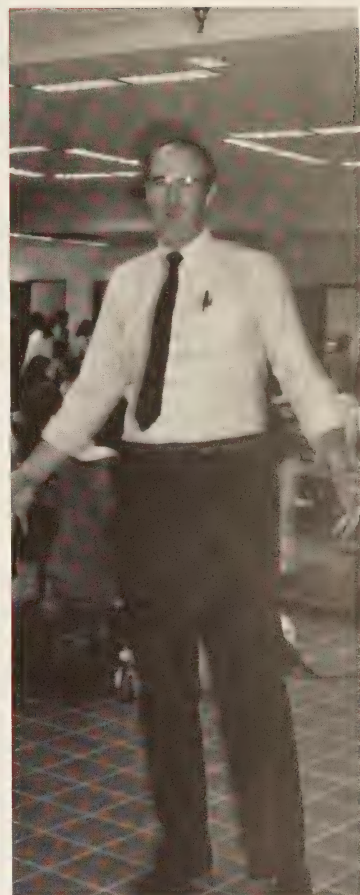

What would you do if your absolutely, positively, had to open a school on time? Our staff decided to see if our brilliant faculty and students had any ingenious ideas. Perhaps some of the builders could have used these suggestions ... but we doubt it! But somehow Chancellor High School did manage to open its doors BEFORE we collected these helpful hints.

Mr. Stabelford: "Make sure you have a well-tuned clock that works."

Changing from dirt piles (top) to a school (below):

Mr. Daniel: "You have to spend a lot of extra hours. You need a cooperative effort from administration, faculty and everyone."

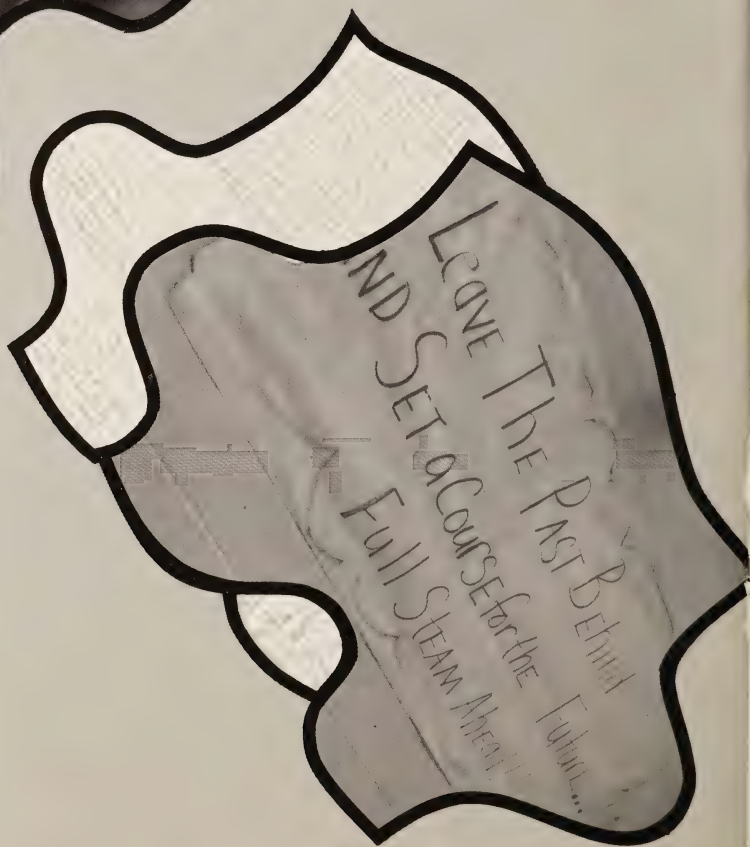

Mrs. Coulman: "You work, work, work on days off and weekends."

Mrs. Holmes: "You sweat bullets. You all pitch in and do the very best you can."

Shannon Blythe: "Conduct school outside on the grass."

Seniors Begin A New Life Here

When you ask students from another school if they know anyone from Chancellor, invariably Gerri Greener's name is mentioned. Gerri has been a band member almost as long as she can remember. Additionally, she maintains a straight A average, belongs to the Spanish Honor Society, the National Honor Society, the Virginia Math League, and holds the post of President of the S.C.A. Gerri is the Senior most likely to leave her handprint on the world.

Seniors Have Leadership

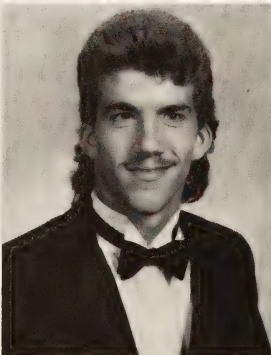

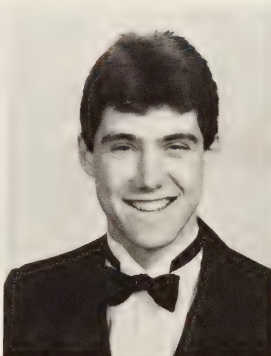

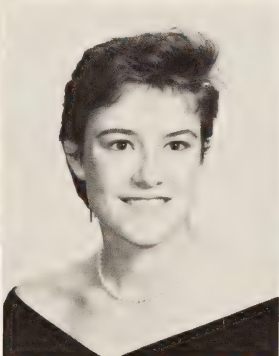

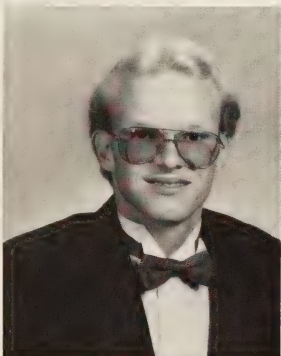

Senior Class Board: Mrs. Mullins, sponsor, April Bartlett, Rachel Swartz, Young Sue, Heather Pendergraft, Sean Lapiet, Crystal Skeens, Stephanie Funai, Carrie Miller, John Clark, Brian Blalock, Jeremy Austin, Mike Servant, and Andrew Winston

Middle: Famished, Mr. Stableford hungrily attacks John Clark so he can prey on John's cafeteria lunch.

Seniors Have Class!

Mrs. Mullins, the Senior Class sponsor, busily works to help the students. One of the fund raisers she organized was the selling of Senior mugs.

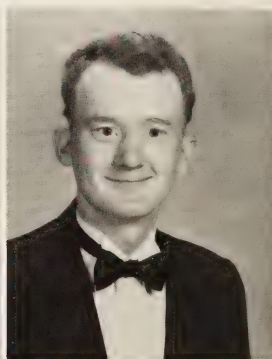

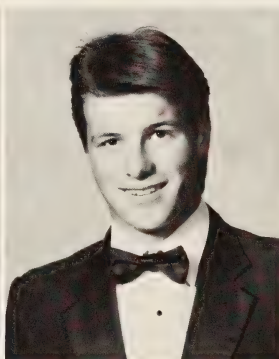

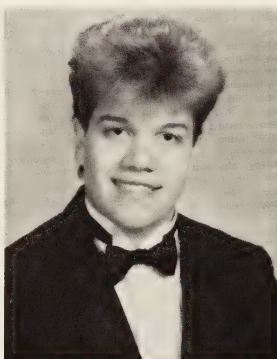

As the camera person sneaks behind him surprised Sean Lapier shows his turned-about smile while he strolls down the hallway.

Senior: Another Word

Last year, 370 juniors were given a choice of which school to attend — Courtland or Chancellor. Many students chose Chancellor because they were looking for a change, for something new. At Chancellor, students recognized the opportunity to become involved in various organizations and sports. Requests for senior class schedules were accommodated, but some juggling was necessary. Students realized the chance to prove themselves and to make a new identity.

Approximately 75 seniors make up the first senior class of Chancellor High School for the 1988-1989 year. Since there are so few seniors, more possibilities are available for each student. Due to the small size of the class, more individual attention from teachers is available. Our seniors are setting standards for everyone to follow while they set their own goals and ambitions. Seniors can excel in our sports, classes, and studies.

Another interesting aspect of Chancellor's first year are the three foreign exchange students that became a part of all of our lives. Susanne Blomqvist from Sweden, Majorie Kaandorp from Holland, and Anne Munks from Germany shared with us not only their cultures, but also their friendships.

If there is one face that is always there when needed, it is Mike Servant's.

Erika Rodgers, Tamatha Shoars, and Gerri Greener are busy at work selling senior mugs.

Ms. Light peers down unknowingly at Jim Carlson as he reclines in the hallway.

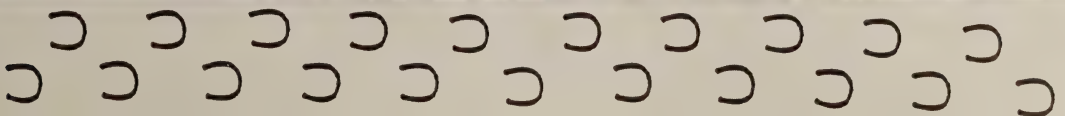

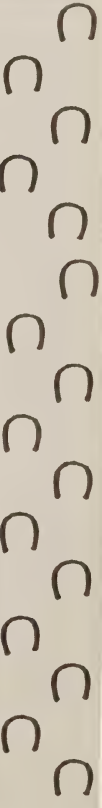

For Perseverance

John Clark and Brian Blalock are leaders of the pack as students follow them up the spiral staircase.

As he looks through Army pamphlets, Steve Catalano pauses to think about life after he enters the service.

Laughing and having a great time describe the lunch at a typical Senior cafeteria table.

Robert Koerper "Rudy" Likes: Baseball, Jazz Band Quote: What you say?

Sean C. Lapiere "Peppy" Likes: Lots of money, Soccer Quote: You never know what you've got until it's gone; so think about it before you get rid of it.

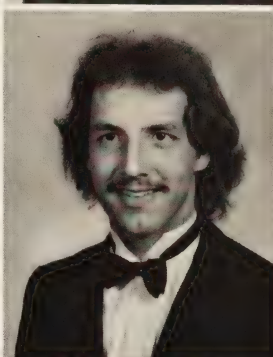

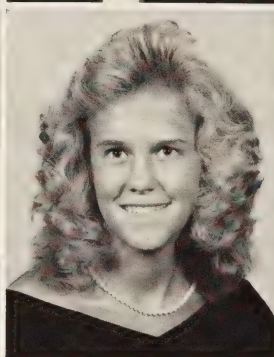

Kera A. Lovett

Marc K. Mankin Likes: Fast cars, lots of money Quote: Wherever you find yourself in life, there you are.

Amanda L. Martin "Mansk" Likes: The Class of '89 Quote: Excuse me, Miss!

Davis S. McGurl Likes: Fast women and fast cars Quote: You only get what you try for.

Carrie E. Miller "Gitsue" Likes: Stephii, Williamsburg Quote: When life gives you lemons ... make lemonade.

Gerald A. Moreau "Jerry" Likes: Carousing, sports Quote: School's been real and it's fun, but it sure hasn't been real fun.

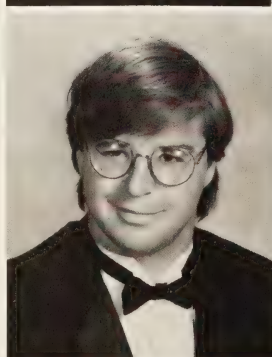

Anne Munks Likes: America, junk food. Quote: Could you repeat this a little bit slower, or wait while I go and get my dictionary?

Robert A. Myers "Rob" Likes: Beatles, carousing Quote: You put the way to the truth when you said, "All you need is love." J.O.L. 1940-1980

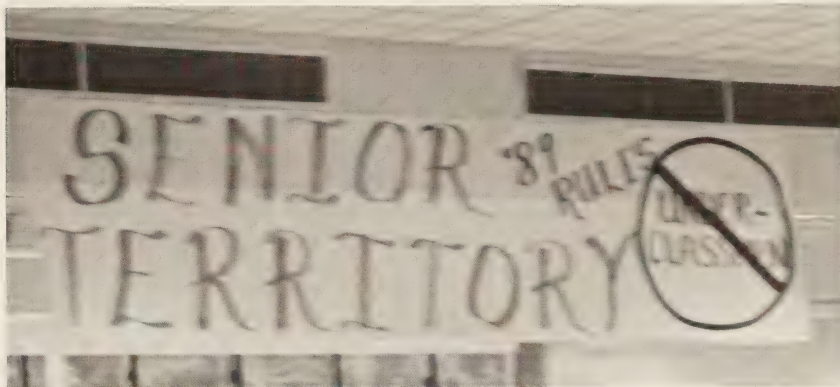

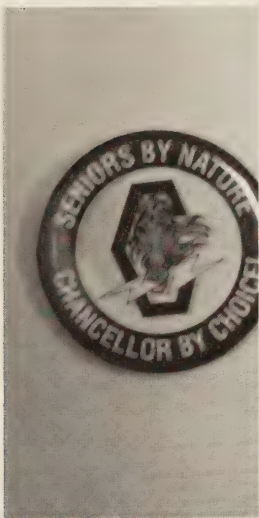

Raymond L. Nelson Quote: A penny for the old guy.

Heather S. Pendergraft Likes: The Hunger, daisy chains Quote: I fell down and down as the nightful of stars slid upwards. Jewels affixed to a dark purple veil, clever that, I thought the sky was real.

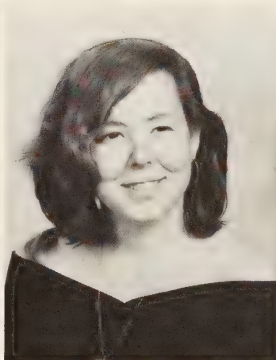

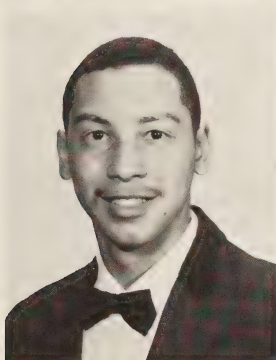

Senior Territory

Is Off Limits To Any Underclassmen!

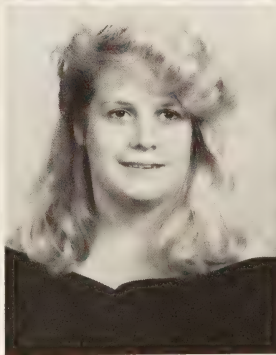

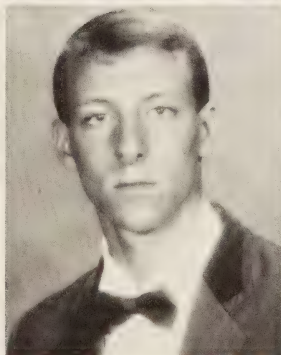

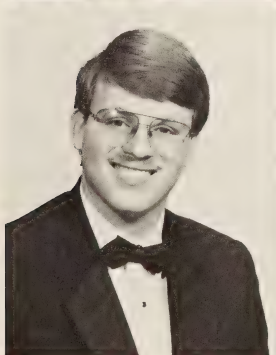

Brian Blalock designed this senior button so the class of '89 can display their spirit for Chancellor High School.

The Senior sign posted in the cafeteria truly expresses the feelings of the outnumbered Seniors toward the many underclassmen here.

Phillip G. Pinkard
Gail M. Rains Likes: DECA, friends
 Quote: One man's fool idea is another man's gold mine.
Erica D. Rodgers

Mark Russnak
Michael A. Servant Likes: Quantico swimming, sleeping, obnoxious bandanas
 Quote: Some people call me Maurice
 ...
Tamatha Shoars Likes: Boys, computers, Maranatha, touring choir, pizza
 Quote: I don't understand!

Crystal A. Skeens Likes: Friendships and vacations with Duckie Quote: Find a God you trust, live a life you love, and don't take it all too seriously.

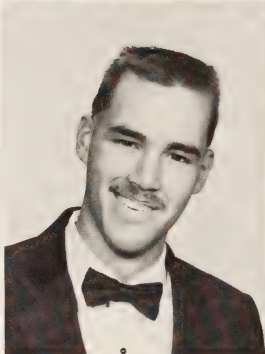

Young D. Sue "Duckie" Likes: Tennis, collecting erasers Quote: Experience is a wonderful thing; it enables you to recognize a mistake every time you repeat it.

Rachel M. Swartz "Taaylor" Likes: Photography, modeling, New York, Carrie Quote: I exist as I am, that is enough.

Tina L. Talbert "Dingy" Likes: Shannon A. Efimenco Quote: One word frees us of all the weight and pain of life. That word is love!

Chad C. Thompson "Leo" Likes: Candle light dinners, TLB Quote: I did what?

Jennifer L. Uhrin "Earnie" Likes: Super sized KitKats, stall buddies Quote: Kelli, S.D., A.D., R.H., I love you.

Exchange Students Add Spice To CHS

Gary Busic, a Senior, truly appears enthusiastic while he is being fitted for his one and only senior class portrait.

Majorie Kaandorp, Anne Munks, and Susanne Blomqvist, the Senior foreign exchange students, added interest and excitement to this year.

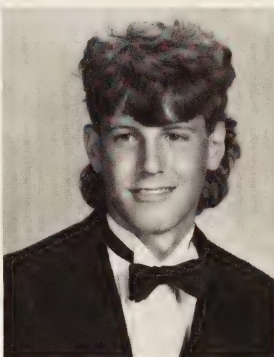

Seniors = Hard Work

Our Senior class was not only introduced to analogies and Beowulf, but had to contend with physics, calculus, advanced algebra, advanced chemistry, Latin IV, French IV, Spanish IV, and research papers, just to name a few frustrations.

Our seniors like life to be casual, as you can tell! Jamie Davis takes his make-up test in the hall in a rather casual, prone position. How was the test?

Stephanie S. Webb-Meeks
"Flame" Likes: Kiwi soda, sunsets Quote: Nothing gold can stay.

Ida J. Williams

Andrew M. Winston Likes: Sleeping, reading, pretty girls, music Quote: Better to be hated for what you are than loved for what you are not.

Eric J. Wright

Seniors Rise To The Top

At left, Stacy Rothschild does an impression. An impression of what, nobody knows!

Above is the silhouetted image of John Clark, trying to find someone to listen to him again!

Remember? On the first day of school, only Seniors were allowed to drive. Does that mean that all those cars belong to just Seniors?

To make our new school feel like "home" this bumper sticker's slogan "Chancellor High School Home Of The Chargers" found itself on many cars in the area.

Juniors Were Confident But As Confused As Everyone Else.

Our Junior year proved to be a year filled with excitement and wonder sometimes mixed with confusion and tears. But most of all it was a year of growing up. We've passed through that awkward freshman period and somehow survived the "thrilling" tenth grade. Now our senior year faces us ahead. It hardly seems possible.

These are the days we'll remember, especially our prom ..., driving ..., friends ..., the SAT's ..., the teachers ..., the parties ..., and all that homework! Yes, these will be our memories in years to come when only a handful will remember C.H.S.'s opening year.

We see Michelle Montgomery here as she is working as an office aid. However, this is only one example of her giving personality. She is our S.C.A. For all these reasons, we have selected Michelle Montgomery as the Junior most likely to leave her handprint on the world.

Juniors Can Have Fun Doing Anything.

Just as soon as we became settled at Courtland, they shifted us to a new school. Considering the size of our Senior class, the Juniors made up the majority of the varsity sports, clubs, and activities. We had the opportunities and took them. The end result was that we Juniors had a more demanding, fun, exciting, and challenging year than any of us had anticipated. Add to all that the fact that our classes challenged us more than ever, and you will understand how wonderful this year was.

Next year will be our last at Chancellor, and we'll have the honor of being the first full graduating class, the class of 1990. If they thought that we were great as Juniors, well just wait. Watch us as Seniors!

SOPHOMORES: Another Piece Of The Puzzle

Chancellor's Class Of 1991

It wasn't easy starting the year in a new school, but good friends like Christine Kepler and Annie Smalling did fine.

One Major Goal

The goal here is to make Chancellor High School the very best it can be.

We want to build a tradition of which future students can be proud. We have begun doing this by working as hard as we can and by believing in our school.

We have found, though, that as Sophomores we have to prepare for changes. More is expected from us than when we were freshmen. We have had to add a little maturity to be able to handle all of the added responsibility. It is the right time to grow up after the freshman year. Here at Chancellor, like all of the seniors, juniors, freshmen, and faculty, we are forced to meet new challenges each and every day. Hopefully, we have met them with "Sophomore excellence".

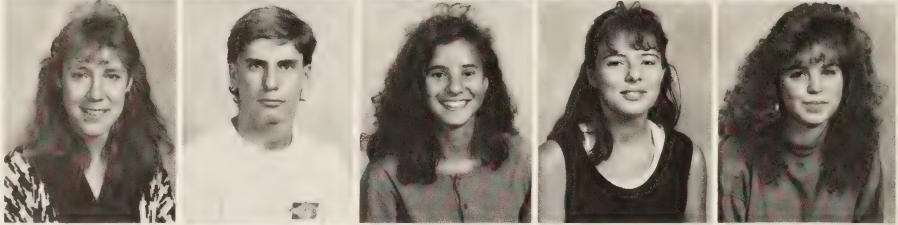

One of the major challenges here for Sophomores is the course of study. I mean, have you ever seen so many textbooks for one class before? Certainly Sarah Coleman hasn't.

Sophomore Sounds

Who Always Cheers Loudest?

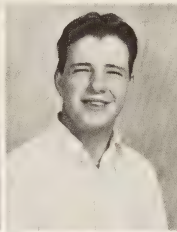

Who Always Laughs Longest?

If you answered "Sophomores" to both these questions, then you would be correct. There's something about being a Sophomore that causes our vocal chords to work overtime. We exercise our voices at pep rallies, ballgames, and certainly in the hallways between classes. Just look for the loudest person and that'll be one of us!

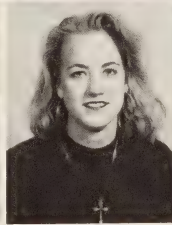

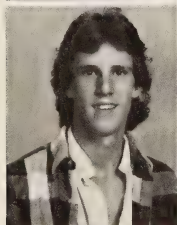

But there are other sounds we

Water fountains seemed few and far between in the halls, but Shawn Woo got lucky and found one nearby and vacant.

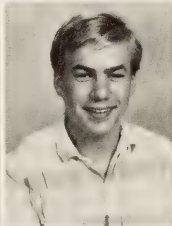

Sophomores make that are a bit more meaningful. In the classroom, you will find us enthusiastic at the new information we are learning about most everything, but especially about literature. We all studied Julius Caesar this year and loved it. Where else can you find a dozen murders, ghosts, and supernatural happenings without turning on HBO? And after all, remember that we Sophomores really like to talk. So, like Marc Antony said, "Lend us your ears!"

Enthusiasm And Fortitude Add Up To Success For Christian

Christian Culbertson exemplifies enthusiasm and fortitude, maintaining a straight A average while holding the office of Sophomore Class President. She also enjoys playing field hockey, basketball, and softball. For all these reasons and many more, Christian was selected as the Sophomore most likely to leave her handprint on the world.

The second year of high school can be very exciting. By then we have already learned the names of most of our classmates. And this year, unlike last, there is a large group of students over whom we have seniority — the freshmen! Give them a freshman to laugh at and Carrie Nerone and Denise McCullen chortle. And what freshman wouldn't cringe at Chris Barber's look?

Living It Up With

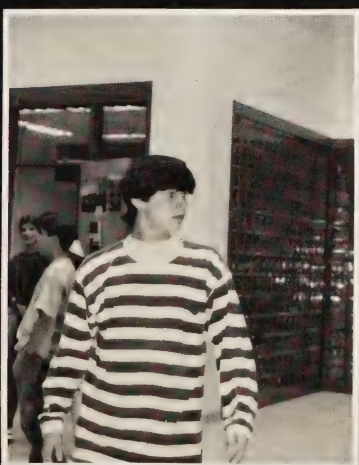

Michelle Perreault's enthusiastic high jump at Chancellor's first pep rally during lunch exemplifies the spirit of the Sophomore class. They are hard playing and high flying. Just ask teachers like Mrs. Campbell about this year's tenth graders. See her expression as Tami McCum shows her an "edible cell". And just like everywhere else, Sophomores can be found at a soda machine or buying tickets for football games, like T.J. Jackson. But is that someone who is timing his thoughts? I hope not. He needs to take a lesson from Tonia Letzo on how to concentrate on studying.

The Class Of 1991

When the camera comes out, so do the Sophomores. As you can see, all you have to do is say "Smile!" and every tenth grader in the school is in front of the lens. Kenny Baile may appear modest, but all he needs is a lesson or two from Andy Piper and soon he'll be hamming it up too. Even when they are on the phone, like Kia Winfrey, or standing in line for lunch, like Ruby Thomas, the Sophomores know when to turn on the charm. Perhaps it's going to take a few months of "behind the wheel" training to sober these kids up a bit.

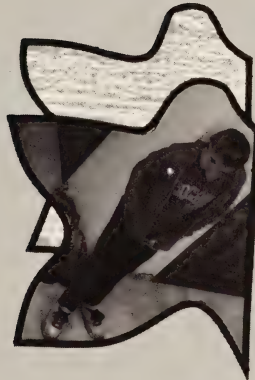

Why Are All These People Smiling?

Just check out all the Sophomores on this page. What do they all have in common? It's that big, beautiful, Chancellor smile. Just look around the school at any group of tenth graders, and you will see that smile. And they have good reason to be so cheerful. This year the word "Sophomore" was synonymous with success. Mrs. Catron, their sponsor, is one of the reasons for this success. But for the most part, it appears the Sophomores' optimistic attitudes help them to excel. Leenda Mizelle smiles brightly at her studies. Lisa Lambrecht and Melanie Clore couldn't be happier as they await the first bell. Tonia Letzo, Annie Smalling, and Emma Wilson are tardy, passing Jennifer Lupianez, Kevin Russell, Manny Tamargo, Jenna Van Zandt, and Carol Marker's class on the way. And who better to dine with than Nikki Carlson and Rachel Wooten?

Chancellor's Freshmen

In such a top-notch Freshman class, it was difficult to select just one student that best exemplifies a positive attitude, scholastic achievement, and involvement in extracurricular activities. Our decision was difficult, but not too hard, for we selected Hahn Le as that Freshman.

Hahn Le is not only an excellent athlete, playing on our first J.V. girls' basketball team and running for the track team, but she also works hard to maintain her straight A average. Additionally, Hahn is always willing to help with the various activities her clubs sponsor, such as the French Club. Add to that the fact that she's involved in the band and you can understand why we chose Hahn as the Freshman most likely to leave her handprint on the world.

Freshmen class officers: President, Carla Culbertson; Vice President, Kim Brooks; Secretary/Treasurer, Melissa Rinker; Reporter/Historian, Krisi Baird.

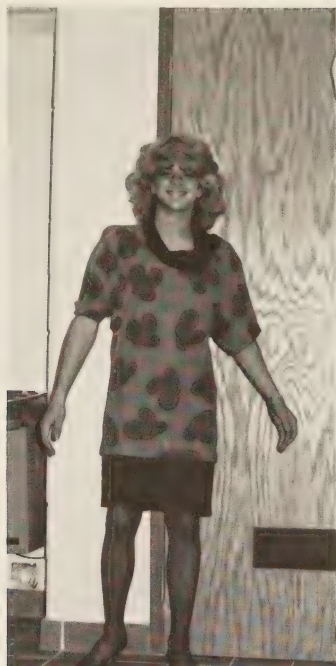

What do you do when you have a Freshman class of over 300 students and you don't have an auditorium or even a gym in which to hold election speeches? Mrs. Hale and other Freshman advisers came up with a unique plan. They videotaped all the candidates' speeches and played them in the Freshman English classes. After hearing the speeches, the classes voted, and the results are listed above. Talk about hi-tech elections! President Bush's campaign had nothing on our Freshman class.

It's not easy being a Freshman in any school, especially in a new one because then everyone's confused, not just you. But Greg Lipscomb (above) and Hector Sara (right) take it all in stride as they head for class.

Rise Toward

The Top To

Mrs. Easley, our Freshman guidance counselor, has been in education for twenty-four years. When she found out she was coming to a brand new high school, she was overwhelmed because she had never counseled at a high school level before. Now she says that the school seems to grow on her and is progressively getting better. She feels that the transition would have been smoother had the school been totally finished before she arrived. In any event, we are happy to have her on our team.

Amy Kincaid says "Ahh" (above) and Mindy Zlater cheers during lunch at a spirit rally (right). Colleen Hanlin, Heather Dauberman and Leigh-Anne Osborne sit in the hall during P.E.

CROSS COUNTRY 1988

The cross country team of 1988 will be remembered for many things, but mostly as a team of firsts. The boys' team became the first team in the history of the school to qualify for regionals. Their third place finish in district sent them to regionals in Charlottesville where they finished sixth. Neil Collins became the first athlete at Chancellor to make first team all-region in any sport. He also came within six seconds of making the all-state team.

With a young team, they started slowly, losing several tri-meets. As the season progressed they matured and got stronger, avenging many earlier losses. By the district championship, the Chargers had five all-district runners with Michelle Montgomery, Carrie Early, Veronica Hanson, Neil Collins, and David Conrad.

The group returning will be extremely strong next year as the team only loses senior Brian Ratliff. With Chris Harris, Hung Le, and Dan Henegar returning with Collins and Conrad, the Chargers will look to advance to the state finals in 1989.

Go!!!

Hung leaves another runner in his tracks.

A CHARGER SWISH!!!

Charger Cheerleaders . . .

Chancellor's winter cheerleaders motivated our basketball team throughout the season. Always spirited and smiling, they encouraged the teams to do their best no matter the challenge. Mrs. Kronander and Mrs. O'Connel, the cheerleading sponsors, were major forces behind the girls, leading them at practices and organizing fund raisers. Many of the girls attended a cheerleading camp at the University of Richmond over the summer. There they learned new cheers and stunts, at the same time improving the skills they already knew. Our winter cheerleaders are truly appreciated.

FACULTY AND STAFF:

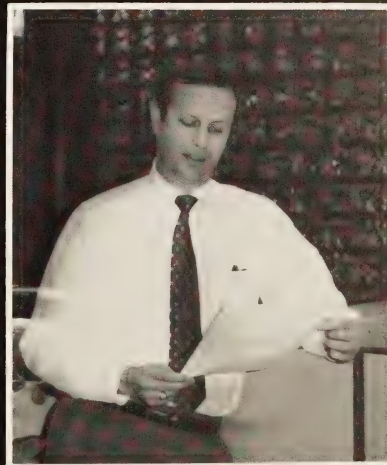

Important Pieces Of The Chancellor Puzzle

"Take us to your leader."

On the first day of school, we all felt like aliens in a strange, new world, wondering about our "new leader." Well, Mr. John Winston's past leadership experiences have proven him well, and we are all confident in our principal. After receiving his B.A. from Randolph-Macon College, he went on for his Masters at the University of Virginia. Inside the classroom, he has taught math for four years in Spotsylvania and was a visiting teacher for one year. Considering he was a principal at Chancellor Elementary (one year), Spotswood Elementary (five years), and Battlefield Intermediate (nine years), this was the next step up. With his guidance, we all worked together to establish a tradition that has made Chancellor known throughout the area and state for student excellence in the classroom and in academic and athletic competition. Our first challenge is completed.

Assistant Principals Maintain Principles

Robert W. Daniel, Jr.
Assistant Principal

Mr. Marra has been in education for twelve years. He served two years as principal at East Hardy High School in West Virginia and two years as Director of Education at Davis Center, a correctional institution in West Virginia. He likes being back in Virginia with his family, where he has served two and a half years as assistant principal at Spotsylvania High School and is now here as assistant principal at Chancellor. The thing he likes most about being here is that the kids are good kids. Mr. Marra also says that he is glad the school is new because otherwise, "it wouldn't have been a challenge."

Mr. Daniel has been in education for twenty-one years, though this is his first year serving as an assistant principal. He is very excited about Chancellor High School this year because it provides a new opportunity for everyone, including him. When asked if he enjoyed the challenge of opening a new school more than the comfortable security of an old one, he said that he was really enjoying the new school and its benefits.

"A man must carry knowledge with him,

Chancellor's first school year has been bustling with activity, and our faculty and staff have been moving right along with the flow. In fact, they had very few moments alone. But fortunately, Mr. Daniel managed to enjoy a blissful moment of solitude.

During the school year teachers were kept busy doing many things other than teaching, such as chaperoning dances, as shown here by Mrs. Holmes and Mr. Shinberger. But even before the school year began, the staff was kept busy. The guidance department managed to arrange student schedules before the first day of school. And even though the work has been hard, our faculty and staff have persevered and maintained a positive attitude. People such as Mr. Winston, Mrs. Shinberger, and Mr. Pace set shining examples of this spirit.

"Challenges" Staff: We Persevered

When was the last time you were handed a job you'd never done before, one you had no idea where to begin? For the members of this year's "Challenges" staff, that was the case this fall. But we persevered. Even after our first dozen pages of layout and copy, along with over 100 photos, were destroyed in a ceiling leak that left five inches of standing water in the yearbook room, we persevered. Even after finding out that every penny of the many thousands of dollars it would take to publish our yearbook had to be raised by us, we persevered. Here at left you see us after our first deadline: Shannon Malocha, Art Canizares, Bill Porter, John Duncan, Cheryl Hall, Whitney Malocha, Mrs. Gordon, Kelly Jones, Renee Shoemaker, and Melissa Lanceley.

Not only did the Challenges' staff work diligently in the school, we also took an eventful trip to U.V.A. for a Virginia High School League Publications Workshop. Other than getting lost on campus, not being able to find our motel, and completely messing up our first layouts, we did great. At right, we see three distracted members, Kelly Jones, Melissa Lanceley, and Bill Porter, at a lecture. Above left: Some members take a break for a photo (Renee Shoemaker, Whitney Malocha, Cheryl Hall, Shannon Malocha, and Melissa Lanceley). Above right: The yearbook staff lines up along the serpentine wall.

The Proof Is

At left, Young Sue receives the Student of the Month Award, and above, the cheerleaders are ready for the Pep Rally.

Miss Ritenaur and the members of our gymnastics team prepare to present Mr. Winston with our first athletic trophy . . . a first place win in Districts! They are Brandy Howard, Tina Letcher, Karen Sharpless, Andrea Marcus, Janel Hradecky, and Nancy McLain.

Check out our winning spirit chain!

The Doors Of Christmas

This, our first Christmas season, found all of Chancellor in the holiday spirit. The S.C.A. collected clothing and toys for four needy families from Spotsylvania and sponsored a canned food drive. On our last day of school before Christmas break, they held a penny roll, from which over 30,000 pennies were collected. Additionally, our French Club, Key Club, and the F.C.A. went caroling in local neighborhoods and nursing homes.

"Deck The Halls"

Above left: Ornaments from school clubs and organizations hung on the school tree. Above right: Inside the office was a tree decorated with school colors. Below: Help make a wish come true.

WE EXERCISE OUR

Sports Assembly

S.C.A. Assembly

Sports letters, trophies, and gifts were given and received at the Fall Sports Awards Ceremony held on December 19. All Varsity and Junior Varsity players and their parents were invited to attend the occasion. After our coaches and Principal made their speeches and presented distinguished players with their awards, there were refreshments served.

Top above, an anxious crowd awaits the announcement of players' names.

At an S.C.A. assembly, Mr. Winston inducted our officers. Additionally, the S.C.A. performed a skit about our first months at Chancellor.

Bottom right, Mr. Winston reads the S.C.A. oath as Michelle Montgomery waits to repeat it.

RIGHT TO ASSEMBLE

An Academic Letter Awards Assembly was held on December 21 for all those who had received a 3.5 or higher GPA the previous year. Letters and/or pins were awarded. At left, Carla Culbertson leads the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. At right, the tenth and eleventh grade letter recipients await the announcement of their names.

At right: The son also rises.

Utility, Form, And Style

One of the most interesting features of our school is its stunning architecture. As one walks into our front doors, the lobby's glass tile paneling greets him. The sun beams down through many skylights on our sweeping staircase. The building echoes our school colors in the lockers and the trim around them. Many years from now, these pictures will remind you of the style in which you became accustomed to studying.
